2. Libori Summer School: Émilie Du Châtelet: Matter, Bodies, Forces, Motion
(Paderborn University; July 23rd to 28th, 2017)

This Libori Summer School focuses on some of the chapters from Du Châtelet's Institutions de physique (1740/42) within the context of the scientific thinking of her time. The lecturers Prof. Dr. Ruth Hagengruber, Dr. Andrea Reichenberger and Dr. Dr. Dieter Suisky will analyse Du Châtelet's work and take a closer look on the complexities and interrelations between metaphysical reasoning, mathematical demonstrative methodology, and experimental philosophy beyond the outdated empiricism-rationalism scheme, focusing on the conceptual foundations and formations of theories of motion.

3. Libori Summer School: Women Phenomenologists of the Early 20th Century
(Paderborn University; July 23rd to 28th, 2017)

The aim of this summer school is to discuss and critically assess the philosophical works of Hedwig Conrad-Martius, Edith Stein, and Gerda Walther. Texts from each of these women will be read, contextualized, compared, and contrasted. Special attention will be paid to how they built on and

4. Conference: 'Gender and Trauma' - The Eighth International Conference on Iris Murdoch
(Chichester University; September 1st to 2nd, 2017)

The conference will showcase published and on-going Murdoch scholarship with a particular focus on the themes of gender and trauma – read in the widest possible sense. However, panels will not be confined by this focus and all researchers currently working on Murdoch's fiction, philosophy, theology and/or their political and cultural significance are invited to contribute papers to this fresh celebration of Iris Murdoch's life and work.
