

The Epoque Emilienne is published – Philosophy and Science: a 30 paper volume on Émilie Du Châtelet from the outside perspective is finally available!

The present book contextualizes Du Châtelet's contribution to the philosophy of her time. The editor offers this tribute to an Époque Émilienne as a collection of innovative papers on Émilie Du Châtelet's powerful philosophy and legacy.

Du Châtelet was an outstanding figure in the era she lived in. Her work and achievements were unique, though not an exception in the 18th century, which did not lack outstanding women. Her personal intellectual education, her scholarly network and her mental acumen were celebrated in her time, perceiving her to have “multiplied nine figures by nine figures in her head”. She was able to gain access to institutions which were normally denied to women. To call an epoch an Époque Émilienne may be seen as daring and audacious, but it will not be the last time if we continue to bring women philosophers back into the memory of the history of philosophy.

The contributors paid attention to the philosophical state of the art, which forms the background to Du Châtelet's philosophy. They follow the transformation of philosophical concepts under her pen and retrace the impact of her ideas.

The book is of interest to scholars working in the history of philosophy as well as in gender studies. It is of special interest for scholars working on the 18th century, Kant, Leibniz, Wolff, Newton and the European Enlightenment.

Nuria Sara Miras Boronat at the Colloquium of Philosophy

Núria Sara Miras Boronat presented a talk on feminist pragmatism at the University of Paderborn. We are very grateful to have her at the Center for the History of Women Philosophers. Núria Sara Miras Boronat is Associate Professor in Moral and Political Philosophy at the University of Barcelona.

She has published several essays on play, feminism and pragmatism in Catalan, Spanish, English, German and Italian. Her current research project is a conceptual history of injustice, oppression and other forms of social exclusion from a pragmatist and feminist perspective.

Together with Michela Bella, she edited Women in Pragmatism: Past, Present, and Future, to be published in 2022 in the Springer Series on

Women in the History of Philosophy and Sciences. She will be visiting the Center in October 2021, and January and February 2022.

Find mutual researchers!

New Voices has the purpose of creating a forum for international scholars who work on women in the history of philosophy. New Voices intends to interconnect and further the work of scholars in the field of Women Philosophers in the History of Philosophy. On our project website, you will find the search tool 'Find Scholars', which you can use to connect with scholars who work on specific women philosophers. The tool is intended for further cooperation and networking among scholars who work on women in the history of philosophy or are interested in this research. The tool is organized by epochs and time of living. By clicking her picture you will find a list of scholars that do research on her. In addition, you can click on the pictures of the scholars and find out more about their research. Try it out yourself here.

Explore the life of Gerda Walther, Edith Stein, Hedwig Conrad-Martius

The long-term aim of this project is to create an online tool able to represent the complex data of the philosophers' lives, works and scientific networks in a way that makes the data easily accessible and comprehensible. Furthermore, it is also capable of generating new knowledge from the given information, creating new insights out of the incorporated data concerning the scientific and personal exchanges between the different members of the scientific networks. Thus, the timeline enables knowledge production worth the term.

The first full version comprises the life data, events and publications of the three women phenomenologists: Edith Stein, Hedwig Conrad-Martius, and Gerda Walther. More women philosophers will be presented soon.

How to find articles in the ECC

The Encyclopedia of Concise Concepts by Women Philosophers, ECC for short, is the first online encyclopedia that exclusively contains entries on concepts from the work of female philosophers.

You can browse the ECC by ...

... looking at a list of all articles sorted by concepts

... finding keywords that interest you

... viewing a list of all women philosophers featured in the ECC

... checking our list of contributors for familiar names

... or simply look a word up in the search engine

You can also read our introduction by editors Ruth Hagenruber, director of the Center for the History of Women Philosophers and Scientists, and Mary Ellen Waithe, main advisor. Contributions are always welcome!
